OUR GRADUATES

Our graduates are strong leaders who make a positive difference in the world of sport. They go on to work for International Sports Federations, the International Olympic Committee, National Olympic Committees and other sports related organisations such as organising committees of large sport events.

ATHLETE SCHOLARSHIP

We created the AISTS Athlete Scholarship to help support current and former professional athletes in their dual and post-sport career.

Because, we know that if and when an athlete decides to call it a day, it's not the end. Only the beginning.

The Athlete scholarship funds half the tuition fee of the AISTS Master of Sports Administration.

For details on the application process, visit www.aists.org/scholarship
Application deadline for the 2017 AISTS Athlete Scholarship closes 15 May, 2016.

AISTS Founders

Foreword by Thomas Bach President of the International Olympic Committee

The not-for-profit AISTS was established by the International Olympic Committee and other respected organisations and academic institutions to respond directly to the need for experts trained in all aspects of sports management in a growing and increasingly complex industry.

By focusing its activities on the three pillars of education, applied research and connections, AISTS routinely produces highly-trained graduates, many of whom have gone on to play leading roles in the world of sport, and offers leading expertise and technical services to a wide range of key players inside and outside the Olympic Movement.

THE AISTS MSA

The 14-month AISTS MSA (Master of Advanced Studies in Sports Administration and Technology) is frequently ranked among the top Sports Management programmes worldwide.

It is highly regarded for its unique multi-disciplinary and practical approach which brings together over 140 international experts in the fields of Management, Technology, Law, Medicine and Sociology.

The AISTS MSA degree is co-signed by three leading Swiss universities: The EPFL, University of Lausanne and University of Geneva.

THE EXPERIENCE

The Masters programme commences on campus in January every year. From January to September, you can expect to experience a full-time schedule of classes, which includes real-world assignments, case studies and a team project collaboration with a real client.

In parallel, from April to November, you'll work directly with a supervisor on your own individual research paper. The programme concludes with a minimum of 8-weeks full-time work experience, from October to February.

WHO WE'RE LOOKING FOR

The AISTS MSA attracts aspiring sports managers from all over the world and from all walks of life.

Experience a class of approximately 35-40 participants who come from over 20 different countries and whose backgrounds are just as diverse; from management, education, journalism, sports, law, engineering, finance, marketing and more.

What you'll need:

- A recognised university degree
- Years of professional work experience
- Proven English language skills
- A commitment to a career in sports administration
